DOROTHY DIX

Habitual Drinker

Dear Miss Dix: My husband is a heavy drinker. If we are invited somewhere he stops, even on the way home from work, to have a few drinks and invariably arrives at our destination definitely intoxicated. We have as a consequence lost just about all our friends.

I work all week, and do my best to keep the home going, but I can not go on like this much longer.
 I love him very much, and always forgive him, but a few days later he's doing the same thing again.
 He's a wonderful person when sober, but unbearably mean when drunk. If I left him and went off by myself I know I'd come back to him anyway.

Answer: Since you have answered your own problem, there isn't very much I can add. If you did leave your husband, you say, you'd come back to him in a short time, by following this merry-go-round system, you know perfectly well there'll be no change in your life.

It is heartbreaking
 The problem of an alcoholic husband is one that is heartbreaking.
 In his hopelessness. Of course, the rare cases in which the man wants to overcome his weakness can be cured through the proper agencies.
 But when a man is perfectly content with his besotted life there is nothing for the little woman to do but leave him, or stay and put up with it. There are many artifices to which you could resort for temporary relief, but they will succeed only for a short time. You could, for example, have his place of business send his salary checks to you instead of handing him the money. With less cash in his jeans he'll have less to spend on liquor.

This is, however, at best only a stop-gap as sooner or later he'll find some other source of revenue.
 Appeals to his better nature are likewise futile, for any success they achieve will be only temporary.

Since you have a good job, and are supporting yourself now anyway, I certainly think your wisest course would be to leave before the strain of living with a heavy drinker takes its toll of your health.
 Perhaps if you left it would bring him to his senses and effect a reform. However, since you have already decided such a solution is impossible, I can only recommend prayer and a determination to make the best of what life offers you.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married seven years and my husband is everything he should be, but several times he has come home with lipstick on his clothing.
 He always has an explanation but they are hard to believe. I can't bear to think that he is unfaithful.
 He is so good to me and our children and seems to love us all very much. I am becoming a nervous wreck trying to believe in him.
 Am I just the suspicious type or have I reason to be alarmed?

LINDA V.
 Answer: If your husband is everything you say he is, you are allowing these incidents to have more importance than they deserve.
 There are any number of ways in which a man may innocently get exercise for good health.

 Group discussion was led by Mrs. Joe Hargis and Mrs. Roy Baker. Mrs. White was in charge of the recreation. The surprise package was won by Mrs. McCullough.

Refreshments were served to a membership of 25 members and visitors. The evening was a success.

lipstick on his clothing. Turn to trusting him instead of doubting until you have more definite proof.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a boy 22 with two years' of college. Ever since I can remember my parents have picked my friends and playmates — usually girls. While in high school and college I found it extremely difficult to make friends with the boys. Now I live in a small town, but have an opportunity to accept a job in a large city. Should I take it?

Answer: I think the change of environment will do you a world of good. Being on your own will develop a more independent personality, put you at your ease with other people and inevitably lead to more and better friendships.

Little People Pay Homage to Late King

By ERNEST AGNEW London, Feb. 12 (AP)—Through the hushed dignity of great Westminster Hall, the somberly clad people of Britain shuffled softly in reverent homage today past the body of King George VI.

Silent men bowed before the coffin and passed on. Silent women curtsied to the sovereign in death as they would in life.
 High in the towers of the palace of Westminster, Big Ben blomed the passage of each quarter hour.

As 8 a. m. tolled, the heavy iron-studded doors of the hammer-beamed hall swung slowly open.
 The first to bare his head beneath the freezing wind and walk solemnly into the big stone hall was A. A. Pugh of Liverpool. He had waited on the steps for 13 hours to lead the mourning procession.

This 47-year-old citizen said he was "one of His Majesty's loyal subjects of the old type—not the moderns."

By the time the doors opened, more than 2,000 were waiting in patient line to pay respect.

The throng that stood for hours was a mixture of the common folk of England. There were early workers wrapped in trench coats against London's ever-present damp. There were professional men in bowler hats, carrying umbrellas and brief cases. Here and there stood a woman in mink. Most others, including charwomen who were dressed in the threadbare coats that mark Britain's austere life.

Mrs. Charlotte Threlfall, a telephone operator, joined the patient line at 8 a. m., as she did 18 years ago when George V lay in state in the same hall.
 "I would have stayed all night if it had been necessary," she said.

One of the London bobbies on duty at the door said the mourning subjects were being admitted at the rate of 2,000 every 45 minutes.

The coffin lay on a purple-covered catafalque reached by four scarlet-carpeted steps. At each corner a tall candle in a golden holder flickered. On the closed coffin the imperial crown returned the candles' flicker with flashes of fire from the vast walls of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires.

Hopefuls in Oscar Race Announced

Hollywood, Feb. 12 (AP) The movie world today learned the hopefuls in the annual Oscar derby and it shaped up as a wide-open race.
 Only Vivien Leigh, who played the denigrated Southern in a Streetcar Named Desire, appeared to be a favorite among the top contenders. The English beauty has been tabbed a probable winner of the best actress award in advance predictions.

She has strong competition, including nominees Katherine Hepburn in "The African Queen," Eleanor Parker in "Detective Story," Shelley Winters in "A Place in the Sun," and Jane Wyman in "The Blue Veil."

The race for the top honors among the actors looks like a hard fight among five Broadway-trained performers. Two veterans, Humphrey Bogart in "The African Queen" and Fredric March in "Death of a Salesman" are pitted against three youngsters—Marlon Brando in "A Streetcar Named Desire," Montgomery Clift in "A Place in the Sun" and Arthur Kennedy in "Bright Victory."

If March won the award for 1951, he would be the first star to win three Oscars. Walter Bronson is a supporting actor.

Contention for the best picture award is also unpredictable. The nominees are "An American in Paris," "Decision Before Dawn," "A Place in the Sun," "Quo Vadis," and "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Best supporting actor: Leo Genn in "Quo Vadis"; Karl Malden in "A Streetcar Named Desire"; Kevin McCarthy in "Death of a Salesman"; Peter Ustinov in "Quo Vadis"; and Gig Young in "Come Fill the Cup."

Best supporting actress: Joan Crawford in "The Blue Veil"; Bette Davis in "The Heiress"; and Kim Hunter in "The Heiress."

For 14 hours a day, from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., until Thursday night, the citizens may pass before the bier. Friday it will be taken by

Storing Meat Develops Into
Farm Problem

Storing meat at home to prevent insect and rodent damage is a number one problem on many Hampshire county farms these days.

With much of the pork cured in December about ready for taking up, county Agent Oliver L. Adams today listed a few suggestions for solving many meat storing problems.

The type of cure pretty well determines the type of storage that can be used he pointed out first. Dry sugar or country type cured meats can be smoked; and, if properly protected, will keep no matter how hot the weather. The milder cures introduced by many locker plants do not have enough salt content to hang very long without refrigeration. They are mild cured to produce meat with a fine flavor for eating soon after the curing process.

If meat is country cured, it can be safely stored if it is first wrapped in heavy paper and then in a tightly woven clean cloth sack. The (Mississippi County), chairman of the state club, said the petitions were being mailed to boosters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for president.

He predicted workers could obtain 50,000 signatures in two or three weeks.

'Fort Osage'
Rated Top
Action Film

The real spirit of the old west is captured at its adventurous best in "Fort Osage," Rod Cameron's latest starring picture for Monogram, which opens a two-day run Wednesday at the Seenger theatre.

From every standpoint it must be rated as Rod's best to date in the field of action drama. It is filmed in Cinécolor.

Every element required to provide thoroughly top grade screen fare is in the picture. The story is fresh, the players are deft and paper serves to soak up grease and keep the cloth sack dry. The sack keeps out any insects. The meat will mold but the mold can be scraped or washed off without harming the meat. Meat should be hung in the driest place in the house or in the smoke house.

Mild cured meats, if not eaten before warm weather, should be sliced and wrapped and frozen. Cured meats will keep from four to six months in the locker or home freezer. Many families are freezing their dry cured meats also. It is a good idea, however, to keep in mind that frozen meat does not age. If dry cured meat is to be frozen, it should be aged from two to three months before freezing. If the best flavor is to be obtained, sure in their roles. The direction is brisk, the musical score adds impact and the photography is excellent.

Cameron plays a frontier scout, friendly with the Indians, who is hired to lead a wagon train from Fort Osage to California. The start of the train is long over-due because of threats of Indian warfare. How Rod, single-handed, placates the Indians, routs out the villains and finally gets the train rolling is the essence of the suspenseful plot.

The screenplay features lovely Jane Nigh as Cameron's romantic interest and she gives great warmth and understanding to the part. Morris Ankrum and Douglas Kennedy are outstanding in their roles as the heavies, posing as honest citizens of Fort Osage.

"Fort Osage" was produced by Walter Mirisch and directed by Lesley Selander, from a screenplay by Dan Ullman, top writer of the outdoor type of adventure story. It is interesting to note that since "Fort Osage" was made Mirisch was elevated to executive producer at Monogram and Allied Artists, companies with a subsidiary relationship.
